

Good people, good deed

Ernest was a taxi driver who was firmly convinced that a kind person should be always treated tenderly. Therefore, he always greeted every day with a warm and friendly heart, sometimes he bought some food for tramps, and volunteered every weekend.

One day, Ernest carried a passenger who was called Lucas. Ernest chatted enthusiastically with Lucas. Until Lucas arrived at his destination, he got off the taxi and paid for it, and forgot to take his bag. Ernest quickly picked up Lucas's bag and chased him, returning it to Lucas. Lucas found that his bag was short of $50,000 that he just withdrew from the bank yesterday.

Lucas felt very anxious. He suspected that Ernest had stolen his money , so he asked Ernest angrily , “Why you stole my money?”

Ernest explained to Lucas again and again that he had not stolen the money.

Lucas insisted that Ernest took the money, and Ernest insisted that he didn't lie. After arguing, they called the police. When the police arrived, they were taken back to the police station. Ernest was detained because there was no evidence to prove his innocence.

After returning home, Ernest couldn't help asking himself why he was wrong, why he was suspected of something he didn't do. “Doing good deeds still arouses suspicion? Should I continue to do good deeds ?” Ernest thought for a long time. He decided to find evidence to prove that he didn't steal Lucas's money.

The next day, Ernest looked through his camera recorder in his car to see if he could find any evidence. Just when Ernest was depressed because he couldn't find any evidence, the police called and told him that it was Lucas's wife who took the money out of his bag and left it at home, which led to a misunderstanding and Ernest was proved innocent.

Later , Lucas came to apologize in person and said, “sorry , I shouldn't have doubted you . I forgot to take my bag . You chased me enthusiastically and gave it back to me . I misunderstood you . I sincerely apologize to you . Also , thank you for returning my bag .”

Ernest smiled and said , “nothing , it was my pleasure. Let’s be kind people together and help those people who in need .”
